THE TRIBUNE.

THE ANCIENT HISTORY OF THE EGYPTIANS, CARTHAGINIANS, ASSYRIANS, MOOES AND PERSIANS, GREEKS AND ROMANS, BY CHARLES ROLLIN. With a Life of the Author by REV. R. L. LYM. A. M. In Eight Volumes. From the Fifteenth London Edition. Revised and Corrected. New York—Robinson, Pratt & Co. 63 Wall street.

Despite a few marked foibles, Rollin's Ancient History maintains a popularity which has seldom been awarded to the profoundest erudition, the most labored research. Much of this must be due to the perfect simplicity, the entire absence of sounding line and stately metaphor in the writings of the learned Frenchman. He has more of the directness, the naturalness, the unaffected plainness of the ancient historians than most modern authors. When he has any thing to tell us, he seeks only how it may be communicated in fewest words and with greatest clearness to us—not how the most can be made of it for himself. He never compels us to stand on guard against subtle approaches or insinuated opinions. His idyllic of Monarchy offends no one—it is frank, earnest, and is read with a smile as we would read a Hiawatha defence of the religion of Brahma. His deep, unaffected piety exerts a salutary influence in the midst of the sneers, the doubts, the irreverence of too many among our modern Historians and Philosophers. The explorer, the annalist of antiquity, Rollin seems himself never destined to grow old.

The edition before us is evidently intended for cheap and general circulation. It is fairly printed, and excellently bound, and will win its way to many thousands of readers.

THE SCHOOL AND FAMILY DICTIONARY AND DICTIONARY. Edited by T. H. GALLAHER and HERMAN HOOKER. New York—Robinson, Pratt & Co.

In this work, the authors have endeavored to simplify and make easy the correct appreciation and use of the words comprising the English language. This is done by adherence to the following principles: 1. No attempt is made to define the words tree, horse, table, &c. of which every one who knows any thing must know the meaning. 2. The large class of abstruse or technical terms pertaining to the Sciences, and which do not fall within the range of study and thought of the elementary learner, are also omitted. 3. The large middle class of words with the meaning of which children are not necessarily acquainted is inserted and very clearly, fully defined, with examples. By this method the process of learning is very much shortened and facilitated. The book is elegantly printed.

THE CHRISTIAN FAMILY MAGAZINE, OF PARENTS' AND CHILDREN'S JOURNAL. Edited by REV. D. NEWELL, assisted by an Association of Clergymen. New York—M. W. Todd.

Two numbers only of this beautiful and excellent Monthly have been published, and we heartily commend it to the favor of all readers who believe that Literature is not marred by its association with Religion. It appeals to Parents, to Clergymen and to Young Men for an introduction to the reading community, and will richly repay their favor. Each number contains 48 pages of elegant letter-press, a steel engraving, and a colored flower-print, and is enclosed in a neat cover. Price only $1 per annum. (Messrs. King & Co. 199 Broadway, are City Agents for the sale of the work.)

OUTLINE OF PHYSIOLOGY, both Comparative and Human, by J. L. COMSTOCK, M. D. Robinson, Pratt & Co. Dr. Comstock's series of popular expositions of the Natural Sciences have acquired a popularity nearly coextensive with the Country. The new edition of his "Physiology" just published contains fifty pages of additional matter entitled "General Considerations with respect to Health and Disease," which must be of great value to all who will regard them.

GODEY'S LADY'S BOOK for November is just published by L. Post, 83 Bowery. It has original papers by Mrs. Sigourney, Miss Leslie, Mrs. Hale, Mrs. M. H. Parsons, Prof. Ingraham, and other American writers of less note. The Engraving is not good, and we protest against the Fashion-Plate.

We cannot find the names of either of the following persons on the Loco-Foco Assembly ticket in Longworth's Directory for this year:

George Weir; Auguste Danecan; David R. Floyd Jones; Edward Sanford; Conrad Swackhamer.

Those, therefore, who wish to know about them or their occupation, must inquire at Tammany Hall or at the office of the New Era. We may remark here that there are two Paul Grouts in the Directory: one is a Tailor and one a Piano-Forte Maker, while the one in the Legislature last year was said to be a Cartman. Now which of the Pauls are the Loco-Focos called upon to vote for? The Evening Post spells Edward Sanford's name wrong. Edward Sanford is a good Whig, and his name is in the Directory.

IRON.—We see by the annual statement of the Secretary of the Treasury, that six millions three hundred and ninety-seven thousand, three hundred and seventy dollars' worth of bar iron alone, was imported into the U. States during the last year, besides articles manufactured of iron, amounting to one million, twelve thousand three hundred and twelve dollars, making in the aggregate seven millions, four hundred and nine thousand seven hundred and eighty-two dollars. Here is between seven and eight millions of dollars exported in one year to pay for an article of which we have at home an inexhaustible supply. We need no stronger argument in favor of a protective tariff than this fact alone. In our mountains are found inexhaustible bodies of coal, lime and iron ore in close contiguity, and all that is needed for their development is the fostering aid of the government. Give us a protective tariff and we will soon take the hills and valleys of Pennsylvania ringing with the busy din of the manufacturer, and the Valley of the Susquehanna smoking with numerous furnaces daily pouring out the mineral wealth of Montour's Ridge. We hope to see the attention of our manufacturers and mechanics drawn to this subject—it is one of vital importance to their interests as well as to every friend of American industry. We hope that the press throughout the country will speak out upon the subject—let those who doubt our ability to manufacture sufficient supply of iron for our own consumption, visit Columbia County, where they will find sufficient iron imbedded in Montour's Ridge to supply the United States for ages. [Danville (Pa.) Democrat.]

NEW-YORK TRIBUNE.

OFFICE NO. 30 ANN-STREET.

PRICE ONE CENT.

NEW-YORK, MONDAY MORNING, NOVEMBER 1, 1841.

VOL. I. NO. 175.

From the Evening Post. THE PAINTED CUP, EUCCHROMA COCCINEA.

BY W. G. BRYANT.

The fresh savannahs of the Sangamon Here rise in gentle swells, and the long grass Is mixed with rustling hazels. Scarlet tufts Are glowing in the green, like flakes of fire. The wanderers of the prairie know them well, And call that brilliant down the Painted Cup. Now, if thou art a poet, tell me not That these bright chimes were tined thus To hold the dew for fairies, when they meet On moonlight evenings in the hazel bowers, And dance till they are thirsty. Call not up, Amid this fresh and virgin solitude, The faded fancies of an elder world, But leave these scarlet cups to sported moths Of June, and glistening flies, and humming-birds. To drink from, when on all these boundless laws The morning sun looks lone. Or let the wind O'erturn in spirit their ruddy brims, and pour A sudden shower upon the strawberry plant, To swell the ripening fruit that even now Breathes a slight fragrance from the sunny slope. But thou art of a gayer fancy. Well—Let then the gentle Manion of flowers, Lingering amid the bloomy waste he loves, Though all his swarthy worshippers are gone—Stender and small, his rounded cheek all brown And ruddy with the sunshine—let him come On moonlight evenings, when the blossoms wake, And part with little hands the spiky grass, And touching, with his cherry lips, the edge Of these bright breakers, drain the gathered dew.

THE PHILADELPHIA POST OFFICE.—A paragraph in a morning contemporary a day or two since, in which it was alleged that several heavy losses had been sustained through mismanagement or crime in the Philadelphia Post Office, we know to be utterly groundless. The forty-five thousand dollars sent from Boston was committed to the care of Harnden's Express, and it is not pretended that it was ever in the Post Office at Boston, Philadelphia, or any intermediate place. The "twenty thousand dollars" alleged to have been sent from Brooklyn has dwindled down in the reports to twenty dollars, and as its little evidence of wrong in the Post Offices in this case, as in the other. All the charges calculated to effect the reputation of Mr. Montgomery appear to be equally destitute of foundation. Mr. Hobbie, of the Post Office Department, is in Philadelphia attending the Circuit Court in behalf of the United States against Reeside, and not on account of any errors in the administration of the office in that city. An Officer of the Department has communicated these facts to the paper to which we have alluded, over his proper signature, and it will, of course, retract the charge against Mr. Montgomery, who is one of the most careful, competent and scrupulous officers in the country. We cannot but regret the appearance of any articles calculated to convey a different impression.

JOHN C. COLE.—We published on Thursday a communication from a friend of this unhappy man, with an express dissent from its imputations. Having published much directly calculated to inflame the public mind to frenzy against him—we fear too justly—we did not think it just to shut out from our readers what his friends had to offer in his behalf. Were we wrong in this? Consider that the wretched man is soon to take his trial for Murder, under circumstances bearing very hardly upon him: And shall he be convicted upon the testimony adduced on trial, or on previous impressions against him?—We hope it will be on the testimony alone; and though the Herald has meanly and falsely assailed us for the former article, suppressing the fact that it was a communication, and our comments thereon—we shall not hesitate to copy from Friday's Express Cole's version of the foul transaction which has branded him with the mark of Cain. His story is as follows:

He states that Adams came to his rooms on the fatal afternoon to dun him for an unsettled account, about which there was some dispute. They both sat down at the table and settled the various items except $3. About this a dispute arose between them and high words ensued, during which Adams called him a "bar." Exasperated at this he struck him, and a scuffle thereupon ensued. Adams being the stronger man of the two, threw and fell upon Cole and clutched him violently by the throat that he was in danger of choking.

Cole was then lying upon his back on the floor, and as his hand was stretched out, it came in contact with something which he at once seized, (but as he never knew what it was) and finding Adams's grip still hard upon his throat, he brought his hand round and struck him on the back of the head; this it would seem was hardly sufficient to stun him, and he only rolled rather more on one side; Cole then struck him again, and the blow must have fallen on the side of the head. These words, dreadful as the subsequent examination proved them to be, were not sufficient to release the prisoner's throat; but even in the agony of death, Adams still continued to hold on, until Cole seemed to be at his last gasp, and then the dreadful blow was given on the front of the head, which deprived our wretched being of life, and released the other from his grasp. Cole then arose, and found Adams a corpse.

For some time, he says, he remained stupefied with dread and horror—he knew not what to do, and at length determined to make his brother acquainted with the facts; for this purpose he went to his lodgings, but he was not at home. He then went into the Park, and walked there for some time, being unable to make up his mind as to the best course to be pursued—he at one time thought to tell some friend, but knowing that some stains rested upon his character, he restrained, lest they should not believe his story, and so deliver them up to justice. After traveling the Park for many and many a time, he at length returned to his rooms and took the dreadful means, with which the public are already acquainted, to conceal the deed.

The Fifth Regiment, lately stationed at Jefferson Barracks, were to have left St. Louis on the 19th instant for Portsmouth, on the Ohio—thence to Cleveland, and thence to the stations assigned them respectively.

ON the evening of Monday, 25th instant, the Mechanics of Buffalo held a Meeting at the Court House, and passed resolutions to frame a Constitution and By-Laws for an Erie County Mechanics' Association, auxiliary to that of the State.

DREAD OF CONTAGIOUS.—A Proclamation has been issued by the Mayor of Nashville, prohibiting all boats from approaching that port nearer than five miles until a Committee appointed by him shall furnish a certificate that the boat in question and the hands and passengers are free from contagion or infection of any contagious disease.

For the Tribune. RATHER HARD.—A farmer in Cheshire (England) from accounts he had received of the low price of land and its wonderful productiveness in the West, was induced to sell his lands, and invest the proceeds in the American wild.

Besides a large supply of new clothing, cottons, waisted and woollen stuffs in pieces, to be made up as necessity required, he brought also a shot-gun, musket and rifle for each of his sons, entirely new; also for sewing and planting, fine specimens of wheat, oats and potatoes, and for use, a quantity of butter, cheese, balls, shot, &c. On presenting himself at the Custom House he took the required oath, and took the regular passenger-permit to the Inspector on board ship. The Inspector was of tender conscience and was obliged to go by the terms of the oath, which states that a passenger's baggage entitled to pass free of duty, must consist of articles "wearing apparel actually in use," and no provision was made for a year or two's supply of new articles, which might be brought for actual self-use and use or intended for sale, and the other articles were all subject to duty. The immigrant was obliged to pay duties on some hats, boots, ready-made clothing, cloths, &c. 50 per cent. On butter and cheese made by his family, 400 pounds, 9 cents per pound on cheese, on butter 5 cents; on bullets and shot 4 cents. On 100 bushels of bituminous coal for blacksmith work, 6 cents per bushel. On 100 yards of carpeting 53 cents per yard; on a few pounds of unmanufactured wool, 4 cents per pound, and 30 cents ad valorem in addition. On wheat 25 cents, on oats and potatoes 10 cents per bushel.

He happily could pass a considerable quantity of oatmeal free of duty, which he had brought to make (as he said) "stir-rabbit and oatmeal-cake," cornmeal, not being known nor used in England, and when tried as food here, not liked, it being considered as food only fit for pigs, as, however much cooked or in any way, it has a raw taste.

The sons were most sore for their 12 new fire-arms should pay duty—for their shot guns 30 per cent, and for the muskets and rifles twenty shillings each. A harder case yet, in the instance of a merchant who left England when Mr. Swartwout was collector to come home. After being in this city a year or more, he sent for some valuable books which he had left behind, expecting to have returned again. On exhibiting the books at the Custom House for the payment of the duties, a quantity of old clothes were found packed with the books, to prevent their charging. It was decided that the old clothes must pay a duty of 50 per cent, and the Collector further said, that if by any chance a passenger left behind a trunk of his clothes, and it should follow by the next ship, the duty must be paid.

[We publish this for the information of travelers and immigrants, with the simple remark that the Collector simply did his duty. Many things which seem "hard" are "fair." Ed. Tr.]

There were thirty-five feet of water in the Mississippi at St. Louis on the 18th inst.

Graham House, Barclay-st. MIS TRAVELER and MRS. GOSS respectfully inform their friends and the public that they have taken the well known Graham House, hitherto kept by Mr. R.
